

Tips for Spotting the Keystone Species
of the Wetland

Become a Nature Detective

Find the Beaver

Castor | Castoridae

Chewed Trees

Wetlands house a varying range of biodiversity including plants, animals, and microorganisms fill the fertile and rich land. Beavers have long been the keynote animal of the wetland. Because of their choice to build large and illustrious homes in the middle of bodies of water, they cause these bodies to back up and water levels to raise.

Dams

The pictures on the left illustrate various sights that one who wishes to spot a beaver should be aware of. Other signs include noticing raised water levels due to damming as well as floating limbs in water and around the body of water.

Lodges

Good luck discovering the incredible beaver and the many other fascinating species of the wetland.

The Kroger Wetlands is a 14.5 acre nature preserve, located here in downtown Marietta. Enjoy the green space and the get away from the city life.

WETLANDS

Signs to Look for

